2. Purpose, categories of personal data, legal bases, and retention

We are represented on the following social media platforms (see 2.5) with our own pages. Social media is an important means for us to inform about our business, our employees, and our work culture, as well as to engage with our employees, clients, partners, potential candidates interested in joining the company, and the public. With this privacy notice, we want to inform you about the providers of the platforms, the collection of personal data and your rights regarding data protection. In the following sections you will find the purposes and categories of data processing in connection to our social media pages.

2.1 Contact

We collect your personal data when you contact us via our social media pages, for example via direct messages, or via contact details that we provide on our pages (e-mail address, telephone number etc.). In these cases, we process the information that you have provided to us as part of the contact process. This includes, in particular, names and contact details (address, telephone number, or e-mail address), date, and reason for contact. The personal data we collect will only be used to respond to and fulfil your specific requests. The legal basis is Art. 6 (1) (f) of the GDPR, which permits the processing of personal data for the purpose of our legitimate interest in processing and responding to your request. Your personal data processed in this regard will be stored by us for as long as it is necessary to carry out our relationship (communication) with you and for as long as it is necessary in accordance with the applicable legal retention periods.

2.2 Other user activities

In accordance with the functionalities of social media platforms, as the operators of our social media pages, we process your actions and interactions with our social media pages (e.g. when you like, comment on or share our posts, follow or subscribe to our pages, or tag our pages in your own posts) as well as your publicly visible profile data (e.g. your name and profile picture). Which personal data from your profile is publicly visible depends on your profile settings, which you can adjust yourself in your settings on the social media platform. Data is also processed when we interact with posts from third parties (e.g. like, comment, share).

We analyse the information as mentioned above in aggregated form in order to provide users with content that may be of greater interest to them. However, the information obtained from this does not allow any conclusions to be drawn about a natural person. In your social media profile, you as a user can actively hide your profile information or stop following or subscribing to our social media pages. In this case, you will no longer appear in the list of followers or subscribers of this social media page.

2.3 Interest-based advertising measures

We may use demographic and geographic analyses of our audiences provided to us by the provider. This allows us to place interest-based advertisements on our social media pages or to highlight our posts. However, we do not receive any direct information about the identity of the user to whom the advertisement is displayed. The display of advertisements or the highlighting of posts is based on an analysis by the provider of previous usage behaviour. However, we only have anonymised or pseudonymised information, which usually does not allow us to identify you personally and is never merged with the personal data we may hold.

2.4 Analysis

We use the statistics services of the relevant social media platforms to further develop and optimise our social media pages. The statistics services collect data about the usage of our social media pages and make it available to us as statistical information. This information includes, for example, figures on page views, the reach of our posts, the playback of multimedia content, and demographic data on users and followers of our social media pages.

Our ability to access profiles of specific users is limited by the privacy settings of the particular user on the relevant social media platform. We may use your profile information for internal reporting on certain campaigns. The use of your profile information is limited to the information you have made publicly available on your social media profile, such as: your name, username, gender, network of friends, age range, geostatistical information, and other information you post.

For more information about the analysis purposes of the individual social media providers, please see 2.5.

Any transfer of personal data that we transfer to EU service providers (e.g. for the purposes of IT hosting, operation and support) is based on previously signed data processing agreements in accordance with the requirements of the GDPR.

When we transfer personal data that you provide to us to third parties outside the European Union (e.g. in the United States), we will use so-called EU Standard Contractual Clauses or take other appropriate safeguards if the European Commission has not made an adequacy decision for that country.
